Letters About The Hair.

NEELLYE, Thankful Pannie, A. L. G. Old Maid, Mrs. Mosher, Mrs. L. Nell, and Worried have all written asking about the care of the hair, and I think I can save a lot of time and space by answering their questions collectively today.

Most all complain of dandruff, either with oily or dry scalp, and some of falling hair. One wants to know whether it is possible to grow hair again at 50, with the hair now falling out rapidly. The answer is decidedly yes.

If the hair is abnormally dry, the hot oil rubs are simply wonderful. Indeed, I advise them in any case, they are so stimulating. Get a small amount of crude oil (lampy thick, dark, unrefined oil) and beat this as hot as the scalp can bear it comfortably and rub it in. This should be left on at least two hours and is best if left on all night. Shampoo, then, next day, washing the hair twice to get out all the oil.

This may be done every shampoo or every other shampoo, as you wish—that is, every three or six weeks. The treatment of scalp, or tar soap, Massage the scalp every night with the finest tips, working the skin in small circles over the skull. This may seem to make the hair fall more rapidly for a few weeks, but these dead hairs would have fallen anyway, so take heart. Once you get the scalp in the follicle for new hairs to develop.

Avoid curling irons or curling fluids. They are often harmful and never do any good. Kid curlers are best if you must wear the hair.

New for the toilet. My favorite is this catnip tonic, which I have sent to hundreds and hundreds of people and which seems to have done good in every case—judging by letters I get about it. Indeed, I use myself whenever my hair seems to be below normal in health.

HAIR TONIC.

Tincture of catnip leaves, alcohol, 1 ounce.

Glycerine, 2 ounces.

Spirits of rosemary, 2 ounces.

Aromatic vinegar, 2 ounces.

Rose water, 8 ounces.

A very little bit, only, is needed. It should be dropped on the parting of the hair and rubbed well into the roots; if, much gets onto the hair itself, it has a slight tendency to make it sticky—but it won't be sticky, mind you, unless you get it over the hair and not into the scalp. The glycerine tends to dry out the oiliness of the scalp; if the hair is not too oily or if it is dry, use one less ounce of glycerine and one more of rose water.

This tonic should be massaged in every other night. If the hair gets too oily between shampoos, dust a little powdered orris through it and brush out again; it will leave the hair clean and fluffy.

"Thankful Pannie" also wanted to know what to bleach tin with. Use diluted lemon juice—three parts off at daylight, wash and set itself, and is altogether its own handy man. The four huge dials can be seen from any part of the 29 acres covered by the market place.

LOS ANGELES DEDICATES LARGE PEDESTAL CLOCK

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 21.—The world's largest pedestal clock, erected in the center of the new $19,000,000 wholesale terminal, today was formally dedicated. On a cement base six by 12 feet, the timepiece looks down every night with the finest tips, working the skin in small circles over the skull. This may seem to make the hair fall more rapidly for a few weeks, but these dead hairs would have fallen anyway, so take heart. Once you get the scalp in the follicle for new hairs to develop.

Avoid curling irons or curling fluids. They are often harmful and never do any good. Kid curlers are best if you must wear the hair.

OCCOQUAN.

OCCOQUAN, Va., 25 miles from Washington, on a tributary of the Potomac, is a veritable picture town. It clusters on a hill rising steeply above the creek, which is placid and deep and wide before the town, but breaks into rocky cataracts just above, where it emerges from a great oak forest. A high wooden bridge spans the creek, and near it is an old stone mill which is said to have been grinding steadily for almost 200 years. George Washington used to send his grain from Mount Vernon to be ground at the Occoquan mill.

A few hundred feet above this venerable industry stand the ruins of a small old mill, shadowed by a great oak and covered with ivy. The ancient mill race still runs pouring its clear waters in pretty cataracts over the floors and through the doorways.

Careful inspection has revealed the foundations of an old iron foundry still facing up the creek. It is said to have made cannon balls for the continental army. And there is a well established legend that a glass factory also flourished at Occoquan in colonial days, and a cotton gin is shown to have existed there up to the time of the civil war.

Thus Occoquan is a veritable graveyard of dead industries. Perhaps 300 people live in the town now, once it was many times its present size, and doubtless looked forward to a great industrial future.

The strangest part of it all is that the water power and the water transportation which made Occoquan great a century ago are still there. The swift running waters of Occoquan creek, which were once harnessed to colonial industry, now turn nothing but one moosey old mill wheel. It is said that a great New York corporation has acquired by lease and purchase the control of all the lands thereabouts, and that so far it has not seemed to begin any development.

The inhabitants of Occoquan, many of whom belong to families that have lived there for four or five generations, confidently look forward to the time when modern industry will discover and exploit the neglected possibilities of their native town.

From The Herald of This Date, 1904.

BY France's good diplomatic grace the serious incident between Great Britain and Russia over the North sea trouble is slowly being eliminated. The negotiations are still in progress. A startling charge was made by a captain of a Danish schooner arriving at a French port that he saw, while at an English port, English steam trawlers taking on Japanese explosives. This lends much color to the North sea incident.

General passenger agent W. J. Black, of the Santa Fe lines, and his wife were seriously injured in a wreck on the Missouri Pacific at Tipton, Kan. It is thought Mrs. Black will lose a foot.

United action is being taken by the business men to make El Paso the "Flag" city during the forthcoming irrigation congress. Advance orders for flags are being placed by all merchants.

The El Paso Colts today defeated the Tucson team in both games of a series of two which were played on the Tucson fields. Both games were of the best that have been witnessed on the Tucson field. Hitt and Hemus were the pitchers for El Paso.

Work of rescue in the Terico, Colo., mine explosion is progressing very slowly, only two bodies so far having been recovered. Investigation has disclosed that the explosion was caused through the ignorance of a miner, who exploded his own blast without taking the necessary precautions to prevent accident.

The International Association of machinists was organized today in Washington. It is the amalgamation of two other machinists' organizations.

Local metal market: Silver, 54 1/2; copper, 12 1/2; lead, 2.50; Mexican pesos, 46 1/2.

The "cutover" on the telephone company's exchange on Texas street, was accomplished today and bell ringing is now no longer needed to get central.

Fifteen states of the republic of Mexico will send delegates to the irrigation congress to be held here next month.

The third attack on Fort Arthur by the Japanese is in progress, the attack being made by both naval and land forces.

The New York Herald publishes a forecast that leaves no room for doubt as to the success of Roosevelt at the coming election.

A second labor conference is to be called, according to plans laid down by president Roosevelt. Secretary Hay has already issued a circular to the several governments.

The coal hoist engineers in Illinois have served notice on the operators that they will strike if Frank Morris are reduced five percent as contemplated. The strike will affect 44,000 men.

HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1918.

NEPTUNE rules strongly for good this day. Uranus and Saturn are faintly adverse.

It is a way making for national vision and for reaching foresight that will be advantageous later.

Whatever concerns chemicals should benefit. It is a fortunate government for ordnance contracts and for the making of munitions.

Inspirational ideas are supposed to multiply under this government of the stars.

It is an auspicious time for diplomatic, for making covenants of all sorts and for psychic developments.

Neptune gives great promise to the navy and to the merchant marine, although Uranus seems to foretell jealousy, competition and even misrepresentation.

The good aspects of Neptune are particularly promising to those who deal in fine chemicals.

Music will gain greatly in public estimation and in the future Americans will gain a place among the great composers, the stars declare.

The stars also promise much for the future of real music as read as having given indication of a peculiar significance in the jazz compositions which were to carry a message of earnestness during the coming year.

The evening of this day is read as particularly unfavorable to any business transaction.

Danger to officials of the nation has been forecast as probable in the month of November, which may bring many perplexing problems to statesmen.

The month will not be favorable to schools, public reports and theaters. This was prognosticated many weeks ago.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of losses and anxieties in the coming year. They should safeguard the health.

Children born on this day may be erratic, independent and extravagant. These subjects of Scorpio should be taught sound business policies.—(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dizziness" and that lary feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lumpy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.
